55-57. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Therapists have to be very careful before they make a diagnosis of delusional disorder. A great many complaints are founded on fact. It is possible that a patient is really being harassed at work, that her husband is deceiving her, or that her business partner is cheating her. Indeed, therapists must be careful not to mislabel facts as delusions, a trap known as "the Martha Mitchell effect". Martha Mitchell was the wife of former US attorney general John Mitchell. In October 1972, he was accused of having ordered the break-in at the Democratic campaign headquarters in the Watergate Hotel in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Mitchell repeatedly told the press that her husband was being made a scapegoat to protect the real culprit - President Richard M. Nixon. The White House spread disinformation about Mrs. Mitchell, saying she had a drinking problem and implying that her statements were delusional. When the scandal was ultimately unraveled, Mrs. Mitchell's statements were proved true and she was shown to be utterly sane and with no drinking problem.

55. The passage draws attention to the fact that —.
A) John Mitchell had indeed violated the law on several occasions
B) it can sometimes be difficult for therapists to distinguish between fact and delusion
C) President Nixon had never trusted his attorney general
D) Mrs. Mitchell had always been subject to delusions
E) complaints always have a foundation in fact

56. We understand from the passage that Mrs. Mitchell —.
- A) was often treated by therapists on account of her delusions
 - B) did indeed have a drinking problem
 - C) was indifferent to the disinformation spread by the White House
 - D) was unjustly portrayed as suffering from delusions
 - E) displayed little interest in the Watergate affair

57. It is clear from the passage that, “the Martha Mitchell effect” is —.
- A) the labelling of facts as delusions
 - B) Mrs. Mitchell’s loyal support of her husband
 - C) the use of a wife’s evidence against her husband
 - D) the unravelling of the Watergate scandal
 - E) the giving of false testimony at a trial

58- 60. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Statistics show that rapid population growth creates problems for developing countries. So why don't people have fewer children? Statistics from the developed countries suggest that it is only when people's living standards begin to rise that birth rates begin to fall. There are good reasons for this. Poor countries cannot afford social services and old age pensions, and people's incomes are so low they have nothing to save on their savings. As a result, people look to their children to provide them with security in their old age. Having a large family can be a form of insurance. And even while they are still quite young, children can do a lot of useful jobs on a small farm. So poor people in a developing country will need to see clear signs of much better conditions before they can think of having smaller families. But their conditions cannot be improved unless there is a decrease in the rate at which population is increasing. This will depend on a very much wider acceptance of family planning and this, in turn, will mean basic changes in attitudes.

58) According to the writer, people in poor countries have a lot of children mainly because

- A) they rely on them for support during their old age
- B) they aren't yet prepared for family planning due to their religious beliefs
- C) they usually become involved with farming.
- D) methods of family planning are not known in those countries
- E) they receive government support for every child they have.

59) The writer points out that, before deciding upon family planning.....

- A) governments of poor countries should increase the amount of old age pensions
- B) developed countries should help developing ones to improve their standards of living
- C) governments of developing countries must forbid parents to use child labor on farms
- D) people in poor countries want to be sure of their future
- E) people in poor countries must be educated by social services, being clearly shown the advantages of having fewer children

60) We can conclude from the writer's statements that birth rates in developed countries.....

- A) should be higher so that the population can meet the demand for manpower
- B) can't be reduced without strict family planning
- C) decreased as standards of living increased
- D) will go on increasing unless people change their attitudes towards birth control
- E) will significantly increase due to the booming war industry.
